

FEDERALS SINK THE TAMPICO.

Rebel Gunboat Goes Down at Topolobampo.

A Shell from the Morelos Pierces Her Side.

She Now Lies in Channel Obstructing the Harbor.

(BY DIRECT WIRE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 12.—The Mexican gunboat Tampico, which was seized recently by the Constitutionalists through a clever coup, is lying on the bottom of the entrance to the harbor of Topolobampo, an obstructing the channel that is impossible for a heavy draft vessel to enter the port. The warship was sunk, according to passengers who arrived here today on the steamer City of Para, by the federal gunboat Morelos, on April 5, after a spectacular naval battle between the two ships. A shell pierced the old Tampico below the water line and she went to the bottom, just inside the bar.

THE BATTLE.
Details of the sinking of the Tampico were being given out by the federal leaders at Mazatlan when the City of Para was in that port. According to the reports received the gunboats Morelos and Guerrero came down from Guaymas to engage the Tampico, which since her seizure in the gulf a month ago by rebel sympathizers, has been lying at Topolobampo, the only port on the west coast in the hands of the Constitutionalists.

When the two federal war craft showed up outside of the bar the Tampico steamed down to meet them. Many shells were exchanged, but the distance was so great that they failed to find their marks until a chance shot crashed in the old iron sides of the ancient Tampico. Whether the Morelos and Guerrero followed her advantage or not was not learned.

SUCCESSFUL PLOT.

The turning over of the Tampico to the rebels, who have been characteristic of Mexican ideas. When the warship was steaming from Mazatlan for Guaymas, having been dispatched by the federal commander at the former port, the officers and crew, under the leadership of the chief officer, who was a Maderista sympathizer, informed the captain and the chief engineer that the warship would henceforth fight for the rebels. The plot was then taken into the hands of the captain and turned her over to Gen. Felipe Rivera, former Governor of Sinaloa, one of the foremost Constitutional leaders on the west coast. The commander and chief engineer, the latter of whom was part English, were given their passports to Mazatlan.

REBELS ACTIVE.

According to the officers and passengers of the Para, the Constitutionalists are gaining the upper hand of the west coast, although Guaymas and Mazatlan are still in control of the government forces. On April 5, when the Para was in Acapulco, it was reported that there was a force of 5000 rebels outside the town and that a battle was imminent.

BUSINESS BAD.

Business conditions at the lower coast ports, said the Para's passengers, continued dull. There is only one bank operating at Mazatlan and a number of the large business houses have closed their doors.

THE WEATHER BACK EAST.

Portland is the Only City on the Weather Map Which Reports Rain on Easter.

(BY DIRECT WIRE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 12.—Chicago women had a fine opportunity to show their Easter finery today. The sun was out in full splendor all day long. The mercury mounted up the 55-degree mark, although the wind was from the north. Fine Easter weather also prevailed in other cities of the Central States. Milwaukee reported the first fair Easter since 1861. Portland, Or., was the only city on the weather map which reported rain.

Paraguay in 1865. An American warship was fired upon while en route to the Parana River and the sailor at the helm was killed. President Buchanan brought the subject to the attention of Congress and the latter passed a resolution authorizing the adoption of such measures and the use of such force as might be necessary to obtain reparation.

A strong naval force and a special commissioner were sent to the capital of Paraguay. The President of the republic did not dare to resist the demands then made on him and in addition to ample apologies, including a salute and indemnity of $10,000 was obtained for the heirs of the sailor who had been killed.

It is suggested by administration officials who are close to Secretary Bryan that it may not be necessary to take harsh measures to secure the required salute to the American flag at Tampico. It is believed by them that if given time Huerta eventually will order the salute. Of course the possibility of a "watchful waiting" in this instance will secure no results for the reason that Rear-Admiral Mayo's demand was in the form of an ultimatum and fixed a specific time limit for compliance. That limit has expired.

If nothing should be done by the time the President returns tomorrow it is expected he will take up the question of what is to be done. The matter is so serious that it admits of no delay in the opinion of high naval officers.

The President also must take up the question of what steps to take with reference to the expulsion of Spaniards from Torreon by Gen. Villa Carranza has refused to interfere. The administration finds this development on the Constitutional side as awkward as that of the Tampico affair.

LIND AND WILSON MEET THIS WEEK.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Washington officials and diplomats were speculating tonight upon the outcome of the two conferences to be held during the coming week, one in this city between President Wilson and his personal representative in Mexico, John Lind, and the other at Torreon between Gen. Venustiano Carranza, first chief of the Constitutionalists, and Gen. Villa.

President Wilson will return to the capital tomorrow from his week-end trip to West Virginia. Mr. Lind is expected to arrive in Mexico tomorrow aboard the yacht Mayflower and he is expected to reach here Tuesday.

About the time Mr. Lind is making his report to the President the Mexican rebel leaders will be meeting for the first time since the days of the Madero revolution and upon this conference much is believed to depend.

Officials here think that a face-to-face talk between Carranza and Villa will result in a clearer understanding concerning the rights of foreigners in Mexico, and especially their privilege of conducting business through consular officials.

The Navy Department was without a final report from Rear-Admiral Mayo on the outcome of his demand that the Mexican Federal commander at Tampico salute the Stars and Stripes as a part of his apology for the affront to America in the seizure of a detachment of United States marines from the Dolphin. Officials declared that no anxiety was felt, as assurance had been given that proper reparation would be made.

It was reported tonight that important dispatches had come from the State Department from Mexico City. Secretary Bryan said, however, that he had nothing whatever to give out.

The Secretary's comments upon the absence of press reports from the Mexican capital and remarked that apparently a rigid censorship was being exercised.

One of the results of the Torreon meeting is expected to be a reply to the State Department's latest representation, especially in the case of the Spaniards exiled from Torreon. Although Carranza has told the department that he is not disposed to interfere with Villa's course toward the Spaniards, there is a frank expression of expectation that this stand may be modified.

It is expected that the situation resulting from the arrest of American marines at Tampico, Secretary Daniels is satisfied that Rear-Admiral Mayo, having been informed of Huerta's apology, will consider the incident closed and may not press his demand for a salute to the flag.

Bars and Hotel Lobbies Are Hotbeds of "Mystery."

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

EL PASO (Tex.) April 9.—Hunters who accompanied the warring armies in the field during the Madero and Orozco rebellions in Mexico have turned tail and fled north across the Rio Grande. El Paso is their haven. For in El Paso they are finding the material with which to paint the world pictures they could not conscientiously arrange on the field with Villa or Carranza.

Opera bouffe battles in Mexico are passed. Men are killing each other down there now. They're blowing each other's legs and arms off and shredding each other with knives.

There is a certain amount of humor in the contrast between the grim earthly life the fighting forces are undergoing on the cause of the state and the hotel-lobby statesmanship and secret servicing of the rival Mexican sympathizers in El Paso.

El Paso is a bee hive alive with buzzing Constitutionalists and Huertistas and Magonistas and all the other more prominent "istas." Or, at least, with pretenses. One crowd through their whispering cliques and their waxed, mustaches and their walking sticks and American you must be in the hotel and on every street corner and telegraph office.

You pass them in their motor cars along the boulevard, rub elbows with them in the boxes at the theaters—the movies—and meet them in grills, always, feels that spine of a motor, always, feels that spine of a motor, always, feels that spine of a motor.

Will Fight to the End.

main army of Madero was several hundreds miles away from this city. Huerta declares that he is going to fight to the last drop of blood. There is no going to be any necessity for any last stand on the part of the federalists, such a thing occurring, the battle will be fought in the capital, with himself at the head of the government troops. This is the kind of talk that Huerta has been making to his close friends recently.

No one who knows the character of the man believes he will flee from the city, no matter what turn events may take. That he is determined to defend the capital to the very last, is the kind of talk that Huerta has been making to his close friends recently.

Practically the whole city is surrounded by two lines of trenches, in which the firing lines will be placed should an attack be made by the rebels. All of the principal streets have been mined and are ready to be set off at a moment's notice by electric batteries.

An abundance of arms and ammunition is available. Commissary stores sufficient for a siege of three years are on hand.

Should the Constitutionalists continue to make gains and finally place this city in the hands of the rebels, it is stated that the largest smelter at Torreon, which is owned by the Madero family, will also reopen operations.

It is announced here that as a result of the success of the Constitutionalists at Torreon the American Smelting and Refining Company will reopen its large smelter at Asarco, fifty miles south of Torreon. The company is already operating its smelters at Aguas Calientes and Chihuahua, while the construction work to have been done by Pauling & Co., the big English contractors. It is considered probable that the Chin Chow-Algun line will get some good pro quo.

It is well known that many Russian soldiers dream of an ice-free port on the Pacific. It was Russia's effort to get one that was largely the cause of the Russo-Japanese War, which blasted Russia's hopes of getting to the sea through Manchuria.

Within the last few years Russian statesmen have been successfully advancing to the south from Siberia through Mongolia.

Late in 1913 Russia concluded the virtual seizure of Mongolia. That dependency of China became independent, as far as China was concerned, but found that the Russian domination took the place of Chinese sovereignty.

The seizure comprised a great step toward lessening the distance between the Russian frontier and Peking and the Gulf of Pechili and there are many experts in the East who consider that it was, but a first step of a Russian plan to advance all the way in the future.

In the meantime, however, Russia and Japan reached an agreement as to spheres of influence, and this is supposed still to hold. But Japan, in pushing a new railway line westward, is opening the way to Russian dissatisfaction with the agreement and there are strong possibilities that conditions will become such as to engage Japan's serious attention.

Another interesting aspect of the maneuvering of Russia and Japan in North China is the difficulty that the two will have in the event of a great upheaval in the region, which would mean disruption and partition. That their interests will then conflict is beyond question.

Stores and residences were gayly decorated. The general, with his military escort, reinforced by the local garrison under Gen. Manuel Chao, moved through the streets to a mansion set aside for his use months ago. It has been furnished lavishly from furniture left behind by absent enemies to the rebel cause.

There was report here tonight that Gen. Villa, thinking that the pursuit of the Federals was not being pressed with sufficient vigor, left Torreon today for Parras, where Velasco's army, or at least his rear guard, is said to have been tarrying on its way to Batillo, 100 miles distant. Fifty miles of this is a waterless desert.

RUSH TRANSPORT TO TAMPICO.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

NEW ORLEANS, April 12.—The United States transport Hancock received orders from Washington tonight to proceed immediately to Tampico.

It is understood the vessel will take aboard refugees from the battle-swept city, where heavy fighting between Mexican Constitutionalists and Federals has been reported.

The Hancock will sail tomorrow afternoon.

The transport arrived two months ago, bringing 950 marines from the first advance base regiment. The marines will remain at the naval station here, it is said. When transport steams south tomorrow she will probably be accompanied by the United States hospital ship Boland, under orders to hasten for Tampico.

WELTHY KENTUCKIAN IS DYING IN CINCINNATI HOSPITAL, ALTHOUGH BLOOD FROM HIS BROTHER HELPS HIM.

(BY DIRECT WIRE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
CINCINNATI (O.), April 12.—John C. Mayo of Paducah, Ky., whose wealth is estimated at $200,000,000, every cent made by himself, Democratic National Committee man from Kentucky, is dying in a Cincinnati hospital of Bright's disease. He has spent $75,000 since March 1 in an effort to check the ravages of the disease and is spending $500 a day now. He has the entire floor of the hospital with private automobiles for his physicians, telephones over which to talk business matters, special servants and everything he can wish for.

As a final attempt to prolong life, his brother, Washington Mayo, yesterday and today allowed transfusion of a quart of blood into his veins. The transfusion was made by a tube fastened on Washington Mayo's arm and attached to the sick man's ankle. John Mayo immediately showed improvement.

Los Angeles Fruit Dealer Recovers His Runaway Wife on a Missouri Farm.

(BY DIRECT WIRE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
ST. JAMES (Mo.), April 12.—A fifteen-weeks' search for Mrs. Geneva Asimakes was ended here today when her husband, Peter Asimakes, a fruit dealer, residing at No. 1310 Wilson street, Los Angeles, Cal., found her here posing as the wife of William Hart, who disappeared with her from that city last December. Hart and his supposed wife arrived in St. James January 27, since which time they have been living with Hart's parents, G. D. Hart and wife, on a farm near here.

Asimakes traced his wife to St. Louis and on Saturday learned of her whereabouts. In company with J. Lada, a law student of St. Louis, he came here Saturday night. This afternoon Lada effected a reconciliation between Asimakes and his wife and returned with them to St. Louis. Asimakes states he will not prosecute Hart.

JAMES O'DEA DIES.

Writer of Popular Songs and Husband of Anne Caldwell Passes Away in New York.

(BY DIRECT WIRE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 12.—James O'Dea, widely known in the theatrical world, died this morning at his home in Rockville Centre, L. I. The immediate cause of death was pneumonia. He leaves a widow, Anne Caldwell O'Dea, whom he collaborated in writing several music plays, notably "The Top of the World" and "The Lady of the Slipper."

O'Dea for years held a leading position among the writers of popular songs, some of which, like "The Sweetest Girl in Dixie," had a great vogue.

with romance and mystery. According to popular report he is an American soldier of fortune who came to Mexico several years ago and entered the army under Diaz. He is a brother of Gen. Fernando Aubert, who is also in prison here charged with embezzling government funds while he was commanding a Federal column in Northern Mexico. The two brothers came to Mexico about the same time.

PASSING OF STILLWELL.

Another one of A. E. Stillwell's enterprises in Mexico is about to go out of business. It is the United States and Mexican Trust Company, which was organized several years ago and carried on a large banking business, also having offices in New York and Kansas City, Mo. Stillwell was the promoter of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad and built several hundred miles of that line across Northwestern Mexico, besides the sections that he constructed in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. A new organization, called the Mexico International Syndicate, has been formed here for the purpose of taking over the business of the United States and Mexican Trust Company. Several subsidiary corporations that own considerable property in this country are embraced in the transaction.

PENN. SENDS EXPEDITION TO EXPLORE SIBERIA.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—The University of Pennsylvania Museum today dispatched an expedition to the northern portion of Siberia, which lies between the Yenesei and Lena rivers, to collect ethnological specimens and data among the indigenous tribes there, of whom little is known. The expedition will join others sent out by the University of Oxford and the Moscow Academy. The triple expedition was planned in order to save expense as well as to make the results more complete.

The tribes especially to be explored are the Tungusic, Tung, Buryat, Mongol, Turcic and Palaeo-Siberian, who inhabit the steppes of Siberia eastward to the Arctic Ocean.

Most of these are released tribes, so that the problem of obtaining members of the expedition is somewhat simplified. The expedition expects to be gone more than a year.

By the mother, He leaves two sons and two daughters.

He had been unable to work some time. On the evening, however, he attended a musical performance in good spirits and appeared to be in excellent health.

Certain-teed ROOFING
GUARANTEED

The General says:
"There are real guarantees, also talk imitations"

There are a lot of guarantees offered on roofings. Most of them are by irresponsible people, or merely conversational guarantees. It's a very important thing in a guarantee that there should be responsibility, and that it should be in writing.

Certain-teed Roofing

Quality Cert-ified Durability Guarant-eeed

Since we have been giving a regular written guarantee on Certain-teed Roofing, one class of competitors has been saying that their roofing "will generally last twenty years, or longer." They don't guarantee it, however, at all. It's very easy to talk, talk, talk and say any number of years in such talk, but responsible concerns must know all about their roofing if they do any more than talk—they must know their roofings really do last when they sign a printed guarantee of plain requirements that the roofing shall make good. Of course, the irresponsible type—those who are likely to go out of business soon—can sign anything. It's very important that the buyer should not be caught in such a trifling manner.

Another very important thing is these talk guarantees are offered on the cheapest goods the manufacturers make; not being real guarantees, there is no risk. They say nothing about their highest priced brands and qualities—just offer the cheapest thing they have—offer a talk guarantee on cheap goods equal to the real guarantee given on Certain-teed Roofing. It's funny how many people they catch on such things!

When you buy a piece of roofing you should know—and know in writing—that it is the best quality—best brand goods made by that manufacturer. Remember—make him put this in writing, that it is his best in every way, and then have the guarantee in writing and properly signed, too.

It pays to be careful in buying goods where the quality cannot be judged by the sample—where everything must depend upon the standing and ability of the manufacturers to make good over a long period of years in the future.

Certain-teed Roofing is sold at a reasonable price everywhere by dealers who believe in giving unsurpassed quality at a fair profit.

The amount of Certain-teed Roofing required for an average roof, say ten squares, will cost less than $5 over the cheap mail order grade. This small initial cost is saved many times as the fifteen years' wear which is covered by the manufacturer's guarantee.

ARROYO BRIDGE AGAIN IS OPEN.

SHORT ROUTE TO LOS ANGELES
PAVED CLEAR THROUGH.

Two Dangerous Railroad Crossings Eliminated—School Children Win Prizes in Pasadena Flower Show. Cards Announce Minnesota Marriage—Widow's Check for Church.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]
SOUTH PASADENA, April 12.—After having been out of commission since the terrible flood of February 20, and the two days previously the new bridge over the Arroyo Seco at the Cawston Ostrich farm is re-opened to traffic. This is known as the "short route" from Los Angeles to this city, and is the only through paved street.

The bridge has been resurfaced at the east approach, the paving of the main part owned by Los Angeles and the county has been completed. The approach on the South Pasadena end which was washed out by the storms has been filled in and the road from the end of the bridge to Pasadena avenue has been put in condition to use.

Owing to the fact that the shorter approach to the bridge is about to be paved a temporary road only has been built, but it will be kept in good condition until the new approach is opened. This will eliminate the two dangerous Santa Fe and the Pacific Electric crossings against which automobilists are warned now that the road is again in operation.

NEWS BRIEFS.
In competition with the schools of Pasadena, Lamanda Park and South Pasadena schools, the Marengo-avenue school won two first prizes and two second at the Pasadena flower show. George C. Bush, superintendent of the South Pasadena schools, was awarded two first prizes and J. S. Torrance, No. 923 Buena Vista street, a second prize.

Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Miss Frances L. Powell, who left here about a year ago, to Dr. Honore D. Vallin of St. Peter, Minn.

Mrs. Seward Simons, No. 1107 Buena Vista street, has been chosen as one of the speakers Wednesday morning at the third lecture of the series on "Thrift," arranged by the Federated Clubs of the Y.W.C.A. Her subject will be "Wasteful Savings of Women."

As a memorial to her husband, the late W. L. Goodnow, who was recently killed in an automobile accident in this city, Mrs. Goodnow has sent a check to the Memorial Baptist Church to provide another entrance to the auditorium.

MRS. LYON'S ACHES AND PAINS

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Terre Hill, Pa.—"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches—pains in lower part of back and in sides, and pressing down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS LYON, Terre Hill, Pa.

It is true that nature and a woman's work has produced the grandest remedy for women's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womanhood a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for women's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health—many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

DIVINE STILL MISSING.

Disappearance of Minister in Danville, Ill., an Issue in Coming Temperance Election.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]
DANVILLE (Ill.) April 12.—Ten days' search by churches, detectives and private individuals have failed to reveal traces of the whereabouts of the Rev. Louis Patmont of Milwaukee, who disappeared in Westville, in Vermilion county. He was last seen on the outskirts of the village about 6:30 o'clock, March 31.

The Rev. Patmont went to Westville to participate in the anti-saloon fight. On April 7, Georgetown township went wet by a vote of 2391 to 1287.

On April 17 Danville will vote on the saloon question. The disappearance of the minister is being made part of the campaign by both sides. Danville dry adherents charged that sympathizers of the saloon have kidnaped or made away with Patmont.

Both sides have engaged detectives to search for the missing man.

New Facilities at Crowther's Corner Near Fullerton—Water Needed for Summer Irrigation.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]
FULLERTON, April 12.—Supt. McFadden of the Anaheim Union Water Company reports that the company is building another water pumping plant at Crowther's corner about 1400 feet west of the other plant and that it will be in operation in a short time.

It will be operated with a 150 horsepower electric motor and is expected to develop 300 miners' inches of water. The new plant will cost about $4000 and will be of great assistance in supplying water for summer irrigation.

The water company now has many thousands of dollars invested in these pumping plants and finds them profitable notwithstanding the fact that it gets half of the water from the Santa Ana River at Rincon.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]
WASHINGTON, April 12.—Opposition to the repeal of the tariff of toll exemption for American ships passing through the Panama Canal still holds the center of interest in Congress, with prospect of further lively discussion during the week in the Senate, where the Committee on Interests and Commerce is to hold hearings on the issue tomorrow.

With the toll controversy drawing and little chance for final action in the Senate, members of the Senate and House have been least early adjournment for the summer campaign might be expected.

The development, however, that the Senate is to hold hearings on the issue of an Interstate Trade Commission, has revived hopes that the campaign for the election of the Senate and Representatives, as early as July.

FIGHT GROWS HOTTER.

Opposition to the repeal is growing more vigorous as the time for the session of the Senate approaches. But Senators supporting the repeal of the tariff of toll exemption for American ships passing through the Panama Canal are not without supporters.

Such Democratic opponents of the repeal as Senators O'Gorman and Chalmers retain the hope that the repeal will be defeated.

THE LINE-UP.

BADLY BITTEN AT OWN GAME.

Cigar Men Lose Heavily to Clever Dice-Shakers.

Fought-for Privilege Proves to Be a Viper.

"Rube" Swindlers Bankrupt Some Small Dealers.

A remarkable case of the bitter bit, wherein many local cigar dealers have been mulcted of large sums and some even put out of business by the very device they fought long and bitterly to retain, came to light yesterday, following an extensive investigation by Detectives McNamara and Cowan of the operations of a pair of swindlers known as the "twenty-six team."

Disguised as hicks out of the tall grass, their method has been the simple one of the crooked working of dice, so skillfully effected that the men who pride themselves on their knowledge of the psychological habits of the bone cubes cannot catch them at it.

Just how many cigar stands there have been bunched is unknown, for the reason that the majority of those who fell for the unsophisticated country boys and were mulcted anywhere from $10 to $400 did not report the fact to the police. Only a few of the little fellows, some of whom lost even their business, made the howl.

The detectives who were detailed to catch the clever "get-rich-quick" artists have uncovered many others who lost by similar transactions. The swindlers act like boozers who have more money than they can spend and shake the "twenty-six" game to pass the time away. In this game, ten dice are rolled thirteen times. If a man is lucky and rolls twenty-six of the number he has previously designated, he gets returned four to one on his money.

The chances are all in favor of the cigar dealer, the average roll being eighteen of the same kind in a long session of shaking. HOW IT WORKS.

The young men lose, as do all who are persistent in their belief that they can win at the game. They increase their stakes, and by the first day or two, but gradually, all the time lulling the suspicions of the dealer. Then they began the old race-track scheme of doubling and making a big haul, they played at one of the hotel cigar stands. The game had run to $400 and the swindlers ahead on the tally sheet, when the cigar man spotted the many-sided dice and also a palming trick. He called a police officer and the dealer was taken to the station.

The list of jewels lost in the coat Mrs. Meyer describes as follows: Solitaire diamond ring, $250; pearl ring set with nine diamonds, $125; dinner ring with twenty-seven diamonds, $225; cameo ring, $25; lavaliere, $175; diamond brooch, $175; gold heart with pearls, $75; Elks' pin, $25; Masonic pin, $5.

The cigar stand formerly operated alongside of the Hill-street Electric station was put out of business by this pair and the same thing is reported of one on Sixth street between Spring and Broadway. Several of the clerks in a chain of stores were dismissed because of the nick which had been made by the enterprising palmists in the receipts of the day. Other large dealers have not been so seriously molested, the proprietor over the route frequently the little fellow, for obvious reasons.

A Main-street dealer, whose stand is between First and Second, had sufficient faith in his luck to wager $300 on the side that the farmer, who had just blown in from Banning, could not win on the six after he had consistently lost for a few days. The unexpected happened and the dealer insisted on doubling. He lost another time and in order to pay his bet, had to put up an "I.O.U." for $220. About that time the case came to light.

"Evidence of the pair have made a tour of Coast cities. We have had reports of them in various places in the North and where they were doing the same stunt," said Detective McNamara.

The entire stock will be sold in lots or by the piece to suit the buyer. Dealers are invited to call. Home Furniture Company, Owners. REED & HAMMOND, Auctioneers.

HOW RESINOL
CLEARS AWAY
UGLY PIMPLES

It is so easy to get rid of pimples and blackheads with Resinol, and if costs so little, too, that anyone whose face is disfigured by these pests is foolish to keep on with useless cosmetics or complicated "beauty treatments." See how simply it is done:

Bathe your face for several minutes with Resinol Soap and hot water, then apply a little Resinol Ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with Resinol Soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing, antiseptic Resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, leaving the complexion clear and velvety.

Resinol stops itching instantly and speedily heals eczema, and other skin humors, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Sold by all druggists, Resinol Ointment, 50 cents and $1.00, Resinol Soap, 25 cents. For free trial size, write Dept. 3-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Don't be deceived by worthless "imitations."

Try This Treatment for Removing Ugly Hairs

(Helps to Beauty)
No pain, and very little expense, is attached to this home-treatment for removing unsightly hair or fuzz from the face, neck or arms. Make a thick paste with some powdered Resinol Soap and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes, remove, wash the skin and the hairs will have vanished. It is well to keep a small package of Resinol handy to use whenever superfluous hairs make their appearance.

MURDER'S PALL MANTLES EASTER

*Mother Is Slain as Children

Innocent Woman Is Victim of Drunkard's Frenzy.

Attempts Suicide, but Only Shoots Out an Eye.

Easter Sunday was to have been the greatest of the three annual holidays for the little family of Mrs. Viviana Cota, but it wasn't, and can never be again, for she was shot to death yesterday. The two new white dresses that Bessie and Herlinda, her daughters, were to have worn, and the new suit that was an Easter surprise for Louis, the boy, are put away and will not be worn until the day the mother is buried. And all because a German sailor did not celebrate his holiday as did the Cota family.

Instead, he got drunk. He is Frank Walden, who sailed out of Amherst, Germany, when but a boy, on a ship bound for South America. The life was hard and the crew was hard, mostly Lascars, he said, and the boy grew hard. Drunkenness was nothing more important than something to be desired, and he always celebrated his holidays with a bottle in his hip.

PREPARE SURPRISE.
While Walden had been reeling from one resort to another Saturday night, the Cota household at No. 131 North Utah street, had been quietly excited. Mother, who was only 38 years old, had some secrets for the children. Easter was always a great day in the home, the greatest of the year, even better than Christmas, for it was warmer then, and they always wore their new summer clothes. And presents were exchanged just the same.

Late Saturday night, while the lights were growing dim to Walden, the mother and her children sat up late. Herlinda, the oldest daughter, 17, had a plan. They were to go to services in the morning, and because the weather bureau said the day was to be clear and warm, they would go to the beach, and Herlinda insisted that she would get up early and help her mother with her work.

The mother, an attractive Spanish woman, was employed as housekeeper at the King Hotel, No. 1014, Wilmington street. Her duties were menial and irksome. Her husband had left her the day the third child had been born, and never again contributed to the family support. So mother and children were unusually close in their relations.

EASTER DAWNS.
Early Easter morning the Cota household was astir. The mother got out her surprises, hardly purchased because her wage was small, but there was a new dress apiece for the girls, a suit for the boy, and some minor gifts that delighted the children.

Then mother and daughter hurried away to work. They dispatched their duties with eagerness and came at last to one room that was occupied. They knocked at the door, a grunt answered. Several times they knocked as warning that they might not be delayed at the services by some sluggard in his bed.

At last all the rooms were placed in order, all except No. 98. Mrs. Cota went there because the hour was coming uncomfortably near to the time when she should be home, getting ready for the day.

Her daughter was fretful about the late sleeper. At last she said, "Mother, go in and wake him." Mrs. Cota turned the knob quietly and it yielded. Walden had been too stupefied to lock his room. Mrs. Cota walked to the bed to arouse the man, for it was late, indeed, and services were soon to be called.

THE BRUTE AROUSED.
Walden was aroused. The graduate from the sailing ship had been awakened many times before by coarser methods, and he was vicious as other men had been, when he awakened them.

He looked up at the woman and snarled. "Get up, please," she said. "Go to hell," he roared.

"You must get up," the woman insisted. Her daughter already had her wraps on and was ready to go.

He cursed and turned over in his bed and the woman shook him. Walden turned over and snarled, low and vicious. He reached under his pillow and drew forth a cheap little revolver.

"I told you to get out, now go," he said savagely, as he shot.

One bullet passed through the woman's chin, on into her brain. Another made her clutch at her breast, she screamed and fell, and her daughter came and dragged her from the room.

Walden, awake at last, gathered some sense of the enormity of his act. He wrote a note to Hugo Weiland, Richmond, Cal., asking the friend to send some money to an undertaker here, evidently to pay for burial.

TRIES TO END ALL.
Then he ran out of the house. Others in the hotel, shocked by the tragedy, saw the man flee, and gave chase. When he reached Third and San Pedro streets, Walden felt some spur of manhood, some courage of decency, for he shot himself.

But all his life he has been weak, the little drunken sailor boy grown up with bad companions and he made a failure of the shot. It only wrecked an eye.

He fell, screaming, however. At the Receiving Hospital an operation was performed, and he will recover, minus his eye.

But the Cota family had lost more than an eye. The mother was taken away to an undertaker's and Herlinda went home with her news.

Bessie and Louis were already dressed for church, and had packed a lunch in readiness for the trip to the beach.

Herlinda staggered up to the porch where they waited her excitedly, for she was late, and they asked: "Where's mamma?" And Herlinda said slowly, "She's dead, oh, she's dead," and then she fainted.

All the new clothes were put away and they will be worn for the first time at the funeral.

Family in Automobile on Way to Easter Services Injured when Car Strikes Machine.

While hastening to Easter services, the family of F. J. Prehoda, No. 1416 Milton street, Hollywood, was injured yesterday when the machine in which they were riding was struck by a Hollywood car of the Pacific Electric system at Hollywood boulevard and Cherokee street.

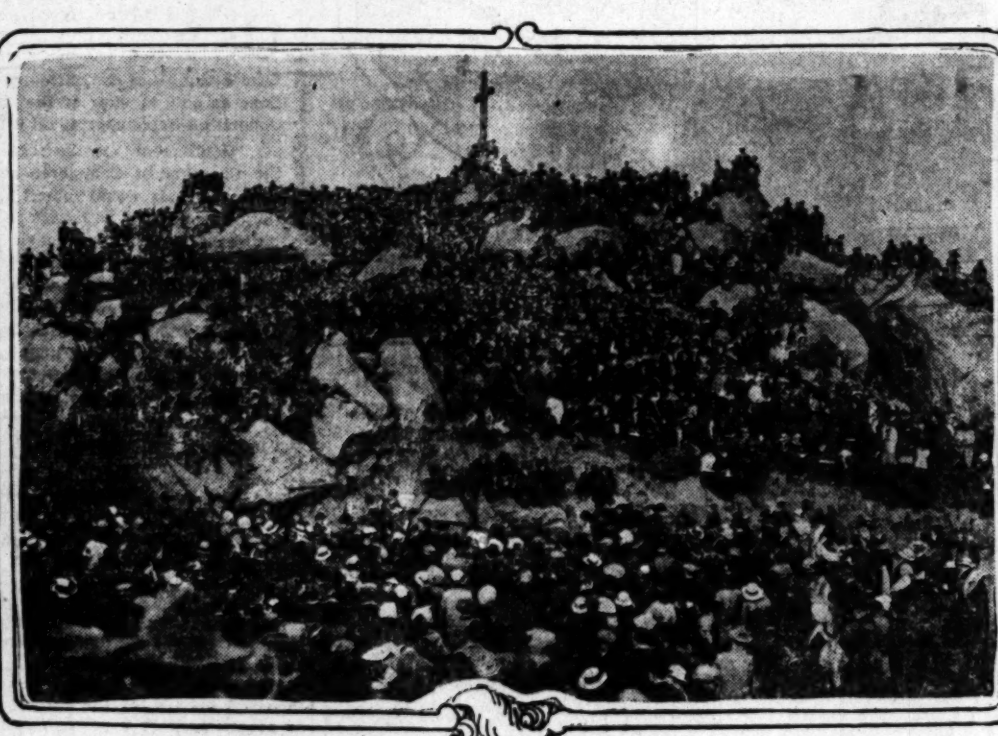

Prehoda, who is a Bakerfield oil man, was with his wife and two children, Geraldine and Mildred, in the motor, when it turned out of Cherokee street into Hollywood boulevard. In an attempt to cross the tracks in advance of the car, Prehoda drove his machine into the front end of the suburban car, and the family was thrown to the pavement. None was seriously injured.

MACHINERY DESTROYED.

Early Morning Fire Burns Building of Simons Brick Company Containing Costly Apparatus.

Expensive machinery for the making of brick and tile was destroyed in an early-morning fire which yesterday destroyed a central building of the Simons Brick Company's plant at No. 769 South Boyle avenue.

The fire originated in the contact of two electric wires in the office of the building, where the wiring had become loosened. The sparks from the crossed wires lighted the woodwork and no one was aroused from their Sunday-morning sleep until the building was entirely in flames. Several valuable machines used in the manufacture of bricks and tiles were melted. The proprietors of the brick company estimated that the loss will be at least $20,000.

Easter sunrise services on the top of Mt. Rubidoux.

Six thousand people from every corner of the earth, participated yesterday in this remarkable observance. Most of those attending, many of them old people, made the rugged ascent afoot.

*Greatest Crowd in Easter's History Ascends Rugged

Services as the Dawn Breaks Over the Purple Range.
Men and Women from Everywhere Take Part.*

BY JOHN S. MCGOWAN.

SIX THOUSAND people, of every creed and every nation, gathered together from the four corners of the world and from the shores of the seven seas, witnessed yesterday the dawn of Easter from the boulder-strewn summit of Mt. Rubidoux in mountain-belted Riverside. And no man who was there, though he live a thousand years, will ever forget that hour of miracle when the golden arrows of the sun shot from behind the snow peaks of the Sierras up into the deep, dark blue of a fleckless sky, while yet a full moon swung above the purpled line of the Temescine. In that one instant of unforgettable splendor when the golden chariots of the day were hurled against the silvered parapets of night, and vale and hill and sky flashed and flamed and faded in bewildering riot of crimson and violet, on the gaunt hill stood hushed and awing in an ecstasy of wonder that Easter in Los Angeles.

beginning of time have lovelier toll-ettes been offered in the market.

How doth the bright spring sunshine bring out the rustiness and shining shabbiness of the winter garments! The women showed yesterday that they were fresh from shopland.

Rome was not built in a day and neither is an Easter gown the creation of an hour. It is stated upon reliable authority that Easter shopping began in Los Angeles this year shortly after the Christmas holidays.

Style, color, richness—these were the characteristics of the Easter gowns. Thousands of modish figures appeared on Broadway yesterday between noon and 1 o'clock p.m. Perhaps, nowhere in the world—not even on Fifth avenue in New York, or on the Boardwalk at Atlantic City—was there such a superb display of clothes as seen yesterday on Broadway. Keats said: "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." The fair creature said: "I will get me a beautiful Easter gown and it will be a great joy on Easter Day, and, perhaps, for a long time thereafter." She began her quest shortly after New Year's. With infinite pains and much expert advice, she finally decided what she wanted. She had it made and yesterday she appeared before the admiring gaze of the multitude. A winter peacock, a dream, a thing of beauty—anything that you can think of along this line.

The uninitiated beholder was impressed with the infinite variety, the myriad colors, combinations of colors and the general elegance and excellence of the Easter garments.

There was a panorama of costumes for the promenade, artistically draped afternoon gowns, chic street costumes for summer, smart coats for travel, dancing frocks and costumes for all occasions; gowns with simplicity and style, gowns elaborate and withal stylish.

Sunshades and parasols came out in all their glory. The said that now the parasol is not only a necessity, but a fashion. They are carried now just for the mode and many of those displayed yesterday were very smart in color and form. A quaint ruffled parasol, one of the "miniature" variety, was the focus of all eyes for a while yesterday on lower Broadway.

What is more fatal to the heart of a summer man than a dainty parasol—a bit of bright coloring against an azure sky. A peep at a parasol always arouses the desire to look under it and a parasol is a poor thing, indeed, that does nothing more than keep off the sun. In truth, it should be a sunshade through which the sunlight filters, softening the light and casting a halo on the one who walks so gracefully under it.

There was an Easter queen on Broadway in an ultra-smart frock of lettuce-green linen. The waist was "gathered" in front and in the back and had an indescribable collar. The sleeves were low and opened below the elbow. The vest was yellow and black. A sash and sash cord of striped satin gave the maid a high-waisted effect. She moved as one possessed of the consciousness of being well dressed.

And so, on and so on.

NATURE LURES JOYOUS THROG.

The following is the Pacific Electric Company's official estimate on the number of passengers hauled to the beaches yesterday:

Santa Monica Bay.....	20,000
Long Beach.....	15,000
Redondo Beach.....	10,000
Other beach and mountain resorts.....	10,000
Estimated number of motorists.....	25,000
By steam roads.....	5,000
Total.....	85,000

The travel out of Los Angeles to the beach and mountain resorts yesterday was the heaviest of any day this season. The day was perfect and the result was an outpouring that required the use of all of the rolling stock of the Pacific Electric Company.

Officials of the electric company estimated that the system carried 55,000 out of the city. About 25,000 people went motoring and the steam roads hauled an estimated number of 5,000.

The travel began early and lasted until late. Early in the forenoon the electric company was running three-car trains to the principal beaches on a schedule of seven minutes. Before noon all of the company's rolling stock was in motion.

An outdoor concert at Redondo Beach increased the travel in that direction. Traffic was unusually heavy to Long Beach and the Santa Monica bay cities.

There was an Easter queen on Broadway in an ultra-smart frock of lettuce-green linen. The waist was "gathered" in front and in the back and had an indescribable collar. The sleeves were low and opened below the elbow. The vest was yellow and black. A sash and sash cord of striped satin gave the maid a high-waisted effect. She moved as one possessed of the consciousness of being well dressed.

VENICE THROGLED.
Eclipsing the great crowd of last year, a wonderful array of spring frocks and gowns was seen yesterday on the promenade between Venice and Ocean Park. The plunge exhausted its supply of wet and dry suits, and every concession on the beach was taxed to the utmost to supply pink lemonade, edibles and refreshments as they converged from the ticket sales of a popular concession showed 25,000 patrons yesterday as against 20,000 last Easter.

MUSIC AT LONG BEACH.
Drawn by the perfect weather, the bathing and an excellent programme furnished by the Municipal Band, an immense throng of visitors was in Long Beach yesterday. Both afternoon and evening, the band played its best selections under Director Willey. During the evening at the forum, Tachakowski's "Symphony in E Minor" and Liszt's "Second Polonaise" won particular applause.

Easter services at various churches at Long Beach were marked by large congregations and impressive sermons and music. The Trinity Methodist Episcopal congregation held services in their handsome new edifice for the first time today. Almost all of the women members of the First Baptist Church wore white costumes, presenting an unusual sight. At sunrise, members of the First Congregational Church gathered for a communion service. At Calvary Presbyterian Church the stepchildren slides represented the life of Christ. A Bible-school campaign was launched in the morning at the First Christian Church.

REDONDO BEACH CELEBRATES.
Yesterday, 20,000 people and hundreds of automobiles journeyed to Redondo Beach from many places to participate in the second annual Easter celebration there, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. Special decorations, including white lily crosses, sixteen feet high, placed against a background of greenery, were in happy harmony with Easter hats and costumes.

The kaleidoscopic effect was happily relieved by a predominance of summery white dresses in the shifting crowds. Sacred, classic and popular music blended in a well arranged programme, rendered in part by a trained chorus of 250 voices under the direction of Thomas Taylor Drill. Both chapels at Soldiers' Home yesterday were veritable bowers of greenery and lilies and in each special music marked well attended services.

BITTER PUNISHMENT.
 Nearly all of the hobo army in Los Angeles were discharged, but society first took a bitter revenge. It compelled them to take a bath.

AMERICANIZATION.
 The Queen of Bulgaria is coming to this country because she is interested in nursing. She should be careful that her enthusiasm is not directed to the tango dance and the card game called pango.

TAKING NO CHANCE.
 A warrant was issued in Pasadena for the arrest of a minister charged with beating his son. Perhaps this man of the cloth was endeavoring to spare his family the reputation of most preachers' sons by not sparing the rod.

EXACTLY NOTHING.
 Senator Cummins declared at Chicago that President Wilson has made Congress a mere cipher. Will the class in mental arithmetic please stand up and tell us how much is nothing plus nothing? The answer is, a Democratic administration.

DELICATE EXPERIMENT.
 A physician of the Rockefeller Institute says he believes valvular operations on the heart are possible. While he is believing that we will take a chance on believing that not an army of patients will come forward to offer themselves for the experiment.

UNGRACIOUS.
 The Mexican rebels have expelled all foreign correspondents from that country. Thus they administer a crushing defeat to their cause. Nobody has won so many rebel victories as the knights of the typewriter. They sometimes took a city a dozen times before the rebels could take it once.

CARRIE ABROAD.
 A foreign Carrie Nation, determined to vote or die, was arrested in London for smashing a case of curies with a cleaver. She was honest, like George Washington, and admitted that she did it with her little hatchet. Thereupon, with a cutting remark, the judge sent her over the hunger-strike route.

GOLD NUGGETS.
 They are no longer found in Alaska, or in the wastes or black sands of Northern California. They are here in the gardens of our Southland. Some people call them Irish potatoes, but be not deceived, for at three pounds for a quarter if a spud is not a nugget, in the name of the Green Isle what is it?

KISS IN DUTCH.
 A man must be careful how he kisses in German or he will get in Dutch. The Supreme court of the German empire has decided that a kiss is an illegal interference with personal freedom unless the kisser be sure of the kissee's tacit consent. At that, an alarming number of us stand willing to take a reasonable chance.

AN INDIFFERENT SERVANT.
 The Mexican refugees at Ft. Bliss were denied a writ of habeas corpus by the United States judge at Fort Worth and a telegraph editor on this paper headed the item "Uncle Sam Still a Walter." The Toledo Blade made the clever reply that there is some danger that a watchful walter may become an innocent bystander.

BUT NOT FOR LOVE.
 Another local killing has been reported as the outcome of an infatuation. The affections reduced to passion often end in violence and almost never in happiness. The sweet springs of life have nothing to do with frenzy and bitterness. The only pain of love comes from the slights that the world may bring it, but never from those who love.

SPALACOPUS POETICUS.
 Col. Roosevelt has succeeded in bagging a Spalacopus Poepigii, with the accent on the pop and the pig. This cururo at first showed fight, but on hearing the colonel addressed by a member of his suite, and ascertaining that it was really the great Progressive Nimrod that was in front of him, he curled his long tail over his rostral back and surrendered.

A STEADY DIET.
 The New York Evening Post thinks that the Japanese Diet intended a direct slap at Capt. Hobson when it cut the proposed naval appropriation down $35,000,000. They didn't go to all this trouble to hit a man already down and out, nor was this a vote of confidence in Norman Angell. It was not a vote for less war, but for more rice; and Japan will be better for it twenty years hence.

A GREAT INSTITUTION.
 Four years ago this coming month The Times inaugurated the joy ride on May Day for the children of the poor. It has been followed each succeeding year with increasing success. Last week Mayor Rose issued a proclamation setting May 1 aside as Children's Day in Los Angeles and recommending that all adults in the city turn out to help make the little people happy. It has become in four short years a feast of happiness like Christmas and Easter. Nothing is so powerful as an idea.

EARL'S FALSEHOODS REFUTED.
 Now comes the millionaire demagogue, E. Toopious Earl, in a frantic endeavor, by misrepresentations in his newspapers, to deceive the people of Los Angeles into the belief that local taxes cannot be reduced and that our great aqueduct will go to the "powerhouse" unless $4,500,000 more bonds, including $2,500,000 for an unnecessary electric distributing system, are sold on Los Angeles taxpayers—the latter bonds to carry an expense of $367,500 a year (for interest and sinking fund) to all the taxpayers, whether they are users of electricity or not.

Tricky as is his wont, Earl keeps silent about the two offers of the power companies, the acceptance of either of which would provide the taxpayers with a yearly revenue of approximately $1,000,000 from the aqueduct power, finding a use for all of it and preventing the slightest waste, and all this without disastrous competition, quarrels, or long drawn out and expensive litigation.

Through his large personal ownership in the stocks and bonds of the Great Western Power Company of Northern California Toopious Earl must know that there is no such thing as a "power trust" in Southern California, though apparently he is willing that one should be created for the whole State, provided he and his power company could cripple the Los Angeles companies and buy up their assets and franchises at forced sale.

The three independent Los Angeles power companies have offered to buy all of the electricity that the aqueduct is capable of generating and pay the taxpayers for it at a wholesale rate, to be fixed by the people's State Railroad Commission, distributing it to consumers at retail rates, to be fixed by the people's chosen representatives, the City Council.

The Los Angeles power companies also alternately offer to enter into a co-operative arrangement with the people of the city for the use of the companies' complete distributing systems already installed, including their reserve emergency steam plants, under which co-operative arrangement the city would deal directly with the consumers, read their meters, fix their rates, collect their bills, handle all money and simply pay the companies for the use of their systems such compensation as the people's State Railroad Commission would fix. Acceptance of this offer would give to the people all the benefits of municipal ownership of this utility, without the expenditure of a single dollar, either as interest or in increased taxes, for a period of five years, at the end of which time the city will be in financial position to buy all the systems for the service of all the people, which full service is not provided for in, or possible under, the present proposed bond issue of $6,500,000.

In view of these sound, business, tax-reducing propositions how purile and misleading are the following whines by E. Toopious.

"They are trying to further the power trust scheme to permit the people to complete the power plant, but to make no provision for a system by which the power produced can be distributed to consumers."

"Either the plant must remain idle and rust away, or the city must sell its power at wholesale to the power trust, which in turn will distribute it to consumers, at a big profit to the power trust."

Does E. Toopious intend to insult the people's State Railroad Commission and his own pledged Councilmen by insinuating, as he does, that they would so grossly neglect their public duty as to allow the power companies to retain a large profit out of the aqueduct power itself? The law fixes the compensation to the companies at actual cost, plus only a reasonable rate of interest on their own properties, actually used in distribution. It is the duty of the regulating bodies to enforce this law.

The people and the press were practically unanimous in favoring the construction of the aqueduct and its power accessory. Bill Mulholland assured us that there would be a large revenue from the sale of water. Within the last few days Mulholland has repeated this assurance and we believe him. Toopious persists in ignoring this pledge by the man to whose genius we owe the aqueduct. Does Toopious's subordination of the water revenue mean that he doubts Mulholland and thinks that he cannot make good?

Assured as we are by Mr. Mulholland of a large revenue from the sale of water, and the certain immediate income which we can get from the use of all the aqueduct power by co-operation with the power companies, guarantees to the people and taxpayers low water and electric light and power rates, puts the people's entire aqueduct investment on a revenue-producing basis, relieves the people of all the taxes thereon, and puts a quietus on the aqueduct's defamer, E. Toopious Earl.

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

If the vote on the tolls repeal bill can be postponed until December it will be killed as dead as salt mackerel, and not all the power and all the patronage of President Wilson can save it. If the President succeeds in forcing it through the Senate, then the Congress to be elected in November will surely renege it and, if there should not be a two-thirds vote to pass it over Mr. Wilson's veto, then it will be re-enacted two years later, and Wilson's successor—whether he shall be a Democrat or a Republican—will sign the law.

No man is great enough to defy the expressed wish of the American people, and the voters of the United States, outside of the few who can be bribed or otherwise controlled by the transcontinental railroads, the shipping trust and the Federal officials, are opposed to the repeal of the tolls exemption law.

Their opposition is manifested from all parts of the country and by all sorts and conditions of men. Boards of Trade and Irish-Americans, Chambers of Commerce and sailors, State Legislatures and State and county conventions, veterans who fought under Grant and veterans who fought under Lee, and their sons and grandsons, are all opposed to the repeal of the law, and they will, at the first opportunity, express their opposition at the polls, without regard to previous conditions of political servitude. The people of Alabama have expressed their wishes by electing Underwood to the United States. The people of Missouri are standing by Champ Clark and saying to the repealers, "Show me," and millions of voters who might have consented originally to repealing the law from sheer indifference to its effect as an economic measure of only local importance will, now that it has assumed the shape of yielding to an unwarranted demand of Great Britain, record their hostility to its repeal.

It is a significant fact that thus far there has not been a single instance of any organized body of men anywhere, of any politics, passing resolutions favoring the repeal.

And all the palaver about "national honor" and "secret reasons" and "diplomatic necessities" has no effect upon the patriotism at the hard common sense of the American people. They know full well that our nation is too just to inflict a wrong and too great and too proud to suffer one. They will never cringe to any power or any combination of powers or abnegate lightly our own supreme sovereignty over our own canal, built with our own money, through our own territory.

If England does not like to patronize our canal because we grant free passage through it to our few coastwise ships, nobody will compel her to do so. She can send her ships around Cape Horn, or through the Cape of Good Hope, or through the Suez Canal to the Orient, the Antipodes or British Columbia and nobody will force her to route them through the Panama Canal.

Until sixty-eight years ago, when we acquired California, England was greatly interested and we were not interested at all in the construction of an isthmian canal, and since then she has been and is now as much interested as we in the facilities to commerce that the canal will afford. But she has never offered to expend a shilling or organize a surveying party toward the construction of one, and her attempt now to dictate or participate in the management of the great waterway which the genius of Goethals and four hundred millions of American dollars have built is a piece of impudence which the American people will never tolerate.

HOUSEWIFE'S PLAGUES.
 Life's little worries come to all of us; we should miss them sadly were they denied entirely. There is truth in the poet's lines: "Oh, don't the days seem lank and long, when all goes right and nothing goes wrong!" For though salt of itself is bitter and pungent, without it no feast is complete.

Our good housewives often have more than their fair share of these little worries. Not least among them are the ubiquitous agent and peripatetic peddler. So troublesome has this form of worry become in some sections of Los Angeles that, to mitigate the plague, an "Anti-Peddler's League" is under consideration.

We can all sympathize with the thrifty wife, her arms up to the elbows in soap suds, called from the wash tub to examine the latest scheme for pay-as-you-enter photographic studio, or to hear the virtues expounded drearily of a multimillion-penny encyclopedia. We can all sympathize with the conscientious cook, dragged away from the frizzling mutton chops to hear a pallid youth expatiate on the virtues of a new pumice-stone tooth powder, or to gaze on the smudged face of a new cent-ed morning paper, printed in the interests of a convicted rebarber, or to listen to the details of a plan for selling dress suits at a nickel a week.

Nor does the city husband, enjoying a twilight hour among his neatly bedded beds of radish and spring onions, relish being summoned by the electric bell to spend that short leisure hour in mastering the intricacies of a new-fangled mouse trap. Especially when, on his return, he forgets whether he had seeded the last furrow to Giant peas or early beets.

But let us not forget that there are two sides to a ham sandwich, and if the bread feels the teeth first the meat is torn under far more violently. The peddler and the book agent—even as the sparrow and the house fly—are the handiwork of a benign Creator. And perhaps what is to the housewife a temporary worry may with them be a steady diet. Let us be patient with the persistent peddler, remembering, "They also serve who only stand and wait." Of course, we needn't allow them to make us stand and wait, too, as long as a good pair of heavy boots may be bought for $1. Some small pearls may fall from the lips even of a despised book agent; some good potatoes may be found in the nobly collection offered by the soulless street peddler. And when the worst comes to the worst an emphatic "No," and a resolute restoration of the impervious door to its solid lamb is as effective as a vigorous motion of a heavily booted foot.

We would not ask a tender-hearted woman to be harsh with any susceptible itinerant vender of unsolicited wares, but no susceptible being ever survives one day of peddling; and those with whom the average householder has to deal are case-hardened and acid-proof.

THE MAN IN THE SADDLE.

We do not mean he who is romantically advertised as pathetically lost in the Central Americas. We refer instead to Col. W. F. Cody, the small boys' hero as Buffalo Bill. He appears in Los Angeles this week with a minor circus where once he was at the head of his own large aggregation. At 68 he will sit in his saddle, straight and proud, and with his old debonair flourish of a white Stetson and a slight bow of inimitable dignity call out: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am proud once more to greet you from the saddle!" The people will applaud and he will ride out of the ring, his day's work done, his wages earned—he that was once a millionaire and who has made that same bow and flourish of his before kings who decorated him and queens who threw him their favors. A few of us will know that the faithful horse he rides and that he loves almost as he might a child of his own were sold from under him not many months ago and was bought back by friends as a gift of admiration and affection and not for a moment one of pity. The jauntiness of his present bearing is not a last ray of pride nor alone the dignity of age. It is the consciousness of power and the fixedness of purpose that have moved and sustained a vigorous and delightful character, bizarre though it has been, through two picturesque generations. Many fortunes he has made and lost before, and now he turns, in the face of another defeat, with a confidence like that of youth and an experience of vast superiority. He will make his way again in the ranks of financiers, whether he keeps his new-won wealth or not. He has a spirit and an understanding that will not down while that which makes Buffalo Bill lives in the body that men call Cody.

KILLING TIME.
WALT MASON IN THE TIMES.

J. Johnson Jinks has wealth to burn, though not a kopeck did he earn. His father croaked some years ago, and left him forty kinds of dough, and he has basked in gilded ease since he was lower than your knees. And life to him is bleak and drear, and every hour seems like a year. He does not work like useful boys, but buys new cars and other toys, and wears ties of when they're bought, for nothing seems to reach the spot. He travels here and travels there, and finds new boredom and despair; his only task is killing time, and that's a nuisance and a crime. There's naught on earth will take the kinks from out the soul of J. J. Jinks, because he never learned to toil, nor had to make the kettle boil. I'd rather labor in the ditch than be so useless and so rich. This world is but a poor resort for any over-loaded sport who tries to purchase cheap renown with wealth his old man handed down. I'd rather have one silver bone, that I have earned, that is my own, than have a bundle in my till, awarded by some dead one's will.

OUR MONEY'S WORTH.

BY JAMES M. WARNACK.

Much is said and written concerning the mercenary spirit and the commercial methods of "New Thinkers," "Divine Healers" and others of similar schools who manage to maintain a corporeal existence by the sale of occult merchandise.

Now, without denying the justification for constant war against unscrupulous dealers in any marketable commodity, and without attempting to bolster up any particular cult or ism, let me inquire whether or not, as a rule, the payment of cold cash for a seat in the "Mystic Circle" is really a swindle of the purchaser or a fair exchange.

With all due respect to the late Mr. Barium, we beg leave to differ from him in his contention that folks like to be humbugged. To fool a man and then tell him about it is an insult to his intelligence that gets him mad up quicker than anything in the world. People do not enjoy being fooled, and it is more difficult to fool them than Mr. Barium may have thought. But people do like to have their imaginations excited and their sensibilities shocked, and because the side show thus takes men and women away from commonplace things and thoughts the man at the ticket box takes in the dimes. Everybody knows that the fat woman weighs only about 500 pounds, instead of 800 pounds—but how easy to imagine an extra 300 pounds! All of us know that the giant is somewhat padded at hips and shoulders, but why should we allow our knowledge to govern our fancy? We have a suspicion that the wild man was not nearly as hard to trap as the speller would have us believe, and we feel that if he were very hungry he could be induced to eat a piece of buttered toast instead of his regular diet of live cobras; but why should we admit these thoughts, even to ourselves? Did we not pay 10 cents for this wild man?

Now, is it not just as true that most of us, when we become enamored of a new religion, do not expect to solve the riddle of existence, but merely like to be fascinated and mystified? Of all mystics and teachers—from the barefooted orientals who charge us 25 cents a lesson for telling us not to eat meat, down to the purple-robed incarnations of Delly—we require one of two things. Either they must keep us mystified, stagger us with their mental speculations, or else they must show us a new phase of that mystery of which we are always so conscious. How can a man begin to unravel for us the scroll of life and at the same time tell us that the book has no ending, and we stop to listen to him. He does not attempt to explain. He only increases our wonder and perhaps intensifies our confusion. We sit at the feet of the master milder of earth, but they only smile and tell us that we had as well search the insane asylums for the answer as to seek an explanation from them.

Then there are other teachers who, acknowledging the puzzle of existence, are constantly breaking into new fields of the illimitable. Some one remarks that this is a very materialistic age. We have heard that before, and we pay no heed. But our attention is suddenly attracted and held by some one who rises to declare that the last speaker was all wrong and that we are living in a very spiritualistic age—that in the conquest of electricity, the great gas and manipulation of machinery, in the wonders of science and the general spread of education there is manifested in all men qualities of spiritual strength and beauty undreamed of by religious fanatics of dark, dead centuries. The man who speaks thus, what has he done? Has he made the age less materialistic than it is? Has he made it a more spiritualistic age than his brother contended? I think not. He has simply fascinated us with the magic of words, showing us the other side of that which we had accepted as true on its face.

One thinker declares that memory is only a series of impressions on the physical brain; that these impressions will necessarily fade and be remodeled, as all material nature changes; that only memory links conscious man with the past, and that, therefore, since man must lose all memories as time goes on, the immortality of individual consciousness is a dream. We have listened to such reasoning and we are sick of it, but we put our hands to our ears to listen when some one, with no attempt to be logical, rises calmly to assert that all seemingly solid facts are only expressions of the soul, and that memory is an infinite book of records to which the soul often refers when requiring terms for present uses and pleasures.

The eugenists, physical culturists and anti-race suicidists have almost lulled us to sleep with their songs of the coming races of superior beings, but suddenly we are startled out of our lethargy by the strange speech of a dark-eyed, pale-skinned man who quietly tells us that Abel has no posterity, that the members of the human race are only the ghosts of the crime of Cain, and that all the virtuous admonitions to perpetuate the race come from the sepulchers of the dead. Does this man prove anything? No. He merely attempts to show that an immortal existence apart from the flesh, is more desirable than imprisonment in a form of clay; that what we call death is better than what we call life. Does he explain to us any of the mystery? I think not. He merely indicates a new angle of the unknown.

And so it goes, world without end. To philosophical speculations there are no limits, and so long as we are willing to pay so much per speculation just that long the dreamy-eyed priests of the occult world will peddle their glittering wares. For my own part, I do not regret any time or money spent for the pleasure derived from my little excursions into the realm of the unknown. And yet, when I really feel the need of living and want a faithful guide for conduct I turn to the Man who, I am persuaded, knew more than all the sages, and yet who demonstrated the profoundest wisdom by the gentlest, simplest living: a man whose life was broken by sorrow and pain, and yet who never questioned, "What is truth?" because he dared to be true—a man whose creed was the Golden Rule and whose religion was love.

Credence should be given to the pre-election statements of the broken charmer of the Colorado Democratic State Committee when she says she can sweep the State.—(Nashville Southern Lumberman.)

Just a few more and Gov. Cole Blease will have pardoned enough South Carolina voters to make his election to the United States Senate a certainty.—(New York Times.)

LONDON PAPER LAMENTS
DECADENCE OF ENGLAND.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, April 12.—In an editorial on the golfing invasion of Great Britain the Daily Mail this morning laments that British golfers are as deliberately casual as American competitors are deliberately careful.

They bring to these international contests, the writer, "an extra keenness, a stronger desire to win, a sounder and more scientific habit of insurance against risks and a far greater readiness to submit to the necessary trouble and discipline. The consequence is that we rarely turn a potentially first-rate man into an actually first-rate man, and we are

WOMEN GOLFERS PLAY FOR TITLE AT MIDWICK SOON.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

LULL in the golf excitement this week—just long enough to practice over the Midwick and Annandale courses at both of which there will be big tournaments next week.

Midwick is to welcome the women golfers for the Southern California championship, which begins April 20. Monday, an 18-hole qualifying round, match play in flights of eight. Second and third flights on handicap.

That makes it possible for every woman player to enter, since no matter how new she is to the game, she will find somebody to play with, and the kindly handicap makes for an encouraging equitable adjustment.

Mrs. E. R. Williams of the Midwick holds the title. She and Miss Katherine Mellis are putting forth every effort to make this one of the largest and best women's tournaments that has ever been held.

The Midwick course is probably the least difficult of all the courses at present, as there are practically no bunkers, and during the recent invitational scores on that account. All the same, Mrs. G. Field, who has been brilliant over there recently, declares it to be quite difficult enough for her, thank you. Mrs. E. R. Williams generally achieves in about 90 or 92.

The out-of-town visitors will find the club interesting and delightful, with scenic views from its knoll to satisfy the most temperamental of players. There is a water hole—No. 17—on the 17th hole, which is a fine view of the scenery and the piquancy of the game.

At present the championship programme calls for only half a day's play each day, but they are arranging for additional play, so that not an hour need be wasted from Monday to Thursday—the date set for the finals.

Entries may be made through one's own club secretary or direct to Alexander MacKellan at No. 415 Van Nuys building. There will be two prizes in each flight. The association doubles the amount of the entrance fees, the more entries, the better quality the play.

The Midwick Entertainment Committee will likewise arrange some of the social side of the occasion.

Annandale Invitation Tournament.

And on Wednesday, April 22, the men's invitation tournament at the Annandale Country Club opens. That will be the last, but one of the season, the Virginia, Long Beach, being the closing event, May 28.

This Annandale affair is the cause of some feminine minglings. An important item on the programme of every woman's tournament, is mixed foursome day. It usually comes at the end, to make up for any discouragements that may have gone before. Just the mere sight of a nice looking male golfer is consoling.

So what on earth are we going to do if all the men are at Annandale? Thursday will be first and second round match play for the men, and soon for any of them to have been put out of the tournament. Yet that is the day when the mixed foursomes are scheduled to take place. The outlook is gloomy. It will be a supreme test of feminine magnetism, tact, diplomacy, charm. However, most of the women golfers are anti-social—those that ought to help.

Otherwise it would be nice and gallant of the men to hold those mixed foursomes as a finale to their own tournament, and something of an innovation. An excellent opportunity for chivalrous reciprocity.

Los Angeles Country Club.

Activity will now be resumed in the spring handicap at the Los Angeles Country Club, which has been holding an eclipse by the championship. Sixty-four players qualified, but so far only seven have been settled.

F. N. Coffin defeated John W. Wilson by 5 up and 4, with an advantage of six strokes. Harold Braly—the handsome hero of the qualifying round—continued his victorious career

California League Ready.

That grand little institution, known as the California League, will Wednesday plunge fearlessly into the season of 1914.

Maier's Millers, meaning Stockton, will open in San Jose with Tom Stevens' Prune Pickers, while Henry Berry's raisin-fed Fresno club will play Modesto in the latter's own town.

But I lost count, and all that I can do is to drag you along to last season, when a party by the name of J. Miller was stationed at that position.

Konetchy Should Stick.

The trade that brought Ed Konetchy from St. Louis to Pittsburgh probably definitely settles a problem that has been a thorn in the managerial side of Mr. Clarke ever since Brannfield was tagged for Philadelphia.

More than one good man has been driven off first base in the village which makes a specialty of piston by the "tin horns" who congregated in the right-field bleachers in the old park. These speculative gents, who were but a short distance back of first, would bet on every play that came up. Remember of what move the first baseman made, he would be panned, because half of the bunch would be betting the other way. If he took a chew, he would be in for a roast from someone who had bet two-bits that he wouldn't.

These conditions have been remedied at Forest Field, first base being considerably removed from the bleacher birds.

Sacramento Here Tomorrow.

Sacramento, which has been engaged in a life and death struggle with Oakland, will tackle some sure enough class here this week in the shape of the Tigers.

While Hogan and Wolverton are reopening their old feud at Washington Park, the dishevelled Angels will be in San Francisco, trying to curb the seals, who unexpectedly bobbed to the surface this week.

At the same time, Portland will have its first touch of baseball, the Oaks and Beavers being scheduled to touch off the fireworks in the Northwest tomorrow afternoon.

Tigers and Seals Climb.

The last seven days have been fraught with several abrupt changes in the percentage table.

San Francisco, by virtue of taking five out of six from those chronic pennant-winners, the Beavers, vaulted from fourth place to the top of the heap, Portland meantime gravitating to fifth place.

The Tigers won five out of seven from the Angels and hurdled into second place. It is the consensus of opinion in sporting circles that Maier's club will take this week's series from Sacramento. This opinion is not made in spirit of boastfulness, but in full belief that it is likely to happen.

However, the chances for Venice to wrest the knickerbocker from the right away quick are not exactly rosy, it being feared that the crippled now unquarreling and the able-bodied ball team under Dillon's leadership will be somewhat tapical and raising for the Seals.

Angels in a Bad Way.

Injuries have placed the Los Angeles club strictly on the bum. If the line-up which they had in the field yesterday afternoon is a fair sample of that which they will be compelled to use in San Francisco, all that the fans can do is to prepare themselves for the worst.

Metzger will be out of it for a month. Abstein's wrist is still weak, while Harper is compelled to favor his off leg. Johnson, after staying in the game on pure grit when he should have been on crutches for four days, follows the injuries to Abstein and Metzger, shoots the Los Angeles infield as full of holes as a Swiss cheese.

With Johnson at short, so that Moore can't be left free to play first base, things weren't so hopeless. But Charley is an utter stranger at short. Crab has been a great pinch-hitter, but nature never intended him for a first baseman. Now that Sawyer has his eye on the ball, he should fill in comfortably at third until Metzger is whole again.

Fitching Staff Crippled.

Chech has not been able to strike his stride. Love yesterday pitched his arm out of its socket, while Hughes howls with pain every time he tries to throw a ball. Crab has not yet displayed the stuff predicted for him.

In short, the Los Angeles staff is reduced to two dependable pitchers—Ryan and Perrett. Chech should be a good bet later. He doesn't help any in the present emergency.

COUNTRY FAIR EASTER WEEK.

Society Women Planning Gay Season of Pleasure.

Natural Museum in Arroyo Seco Contemplated.

Three Banquets Scheduled at the Raymond.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

PASADENA, April 12.—Social gaiety, which has been promised for Easter week, has been somewhat curtailed on account of the great Country Fair which is to be given Friday and Saturday at Hotel Green and in which Pasadena and Los Angeles society women are deeply interested.

The early part of the week, however, will be quite gay, the larger functions, including the at home to be given this afternoon by Mrs. Frank Gates Allen of No. 452 South Orange Grove avenue, the musical to be given tomorrow afternoon by Mrs. B. B. Bush of No. 370 Elvado drive at the Valley Hunt Club, and the dinner-dance to be given at the Midwick Club Wednesday evening by Mrs. and Mrs. John B. Miller, complimentary to Miss Daphne Drake of Los Angeles.

Last evening Mrs. Artemus Lamb entertained with an Easter dinner at Hotel Green, when covers were laid for twenty, and today Mrs. Raymond B. Mitchell of No. 491 Arbor street will be the hostess at a luncheon at the Valley Hunt Club complimentary to Miss Belle Polk of Los Angeles, who is to marry Clinton Huelett Merritt of Pasadena, Wednesday.

But for the latter part of the week Hotel Green and the Country Fair will be the center of interest for all society, as the names of the following society women who have charge of various features of the affair, will plainly indicate.

The "White Elephant" booth is in charge of Mrs. Howard Huntington, Albert Sherman Hoyt, A. S. Halsted, Hancock Banning, with Misses Rufus Spaulding, Ernest Behr, John Earle Jardine, Henry Fuller, G. Lawrence Stinson, E. R. Shider, Mr. Ladd Gifford, Charles Brown, William May Garland, Norbert Murray, David Blankenhorn, Arthur H. Woodward, DeWitt Lacy and a number of young girls as aides.

The millinery booth is in charge of Misses H. Page Warden, Robert Pittman, C. C. Perkins, John S. Cravens, Harrison I. Drummond, A. A. Libby, Francis Stevens, Joseph Hixon and E. M. Fowler.

Other prominent women who are taking active part are Mrs. Frank C. Bolt, C. W. Leffingwell, C. A. Blood, J. P. Rhodes, Thomas Campbell, E. Mason Baker, J. N. Harper, E. W. Adams, Paul Hanberger, and H. T. Chaffield, all surrounded by battalion maids and society buds assisting. Messrs. Lloyd Macy, Arthur Dodworth and Robert Flint have charge of the supper-dance and all the sides shown will be run by D. B. Plumer, who will have able assistants.

WILL HAVE A MUSEUM.

Although he is now intended to give up the hotel business, E. B. Austin, proprietor of Switzer's Camp in the Arroyo Seco, where a new hotel building has just been built, announced yesterday that he intends there to establish a museum of all exhibits that can be obtained from the mountains near by of interest to a naturalist.

Fordyce Grinnell of this city has already installed a case of specimens of butterflies, gathered in the canyon with great difficulty, and there is already a fairly large collection of stuffed specimens of wild animals found in the Arroyo. A library of natural history is also to be installed. "We hope to build up a mountain educational center," said Austin yesterday. "I intend this summer to have lecturers from different parts of the country here and meetings will be held for the study of Southern California's fauna and flora. Contributions of books have been promised and I hope to build up a large library. There is at the present time no such institution as I contemplate located in the mountains where such study can be carried on among the surroundings in question."

CITY BRIEFS.

Francisco Valquez, a Mexican, was taken to the Receiving Hospital at the police station late last Saturday night suffering from several knife wounds. He claimed that he was cut while sleeping. No arrest has been made.

John G. McLaughlin of No. 870 Summit avenue died suddenly last Saturday night of heart trouble while walking on the sidewalk in front of his home with his wife. He has been a resident of Pasadena for twelve years and leaves a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Edna Kunzman of North Pasadena, and two sons. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

TAKES A LOOK AT SAN DIEGO.

Assistant Secretary of Navy Hunts a Harbor.

Visits Exposition Grounds With Delegation.

Wife Prefers to Attend the Easter Services.

(BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

SAN DIEGO, April 12.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is west on a tour of inspection to find a suitable harbor that may be selected as a rendezvous for the American battleship fleet when it is in the Pacific, today inspected the naval coaling station at La Playa, the wireless station at Point Loma, and the site of the proposed $250,000 wireless at Chollas Heights.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy said: "I am surprised at the great expense of the harbor." Referring to the 600 acres of government land at Point Loma, he said: "I am surprised to find that the navy has such an excellent reserve for naval utilities."

He also expressed enthusiastically his approval of the protected location of the harbor, saying that on account of climate conditions and the depth, size and location of the harbor, the Navy Department could use it to good advantage.

The Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Roosevelt were accompanied here by W. Jefferson Davis, an old friend of Roosevelt's. While here they were guests of Lieutenant-Commander Cleveland Davis and Mrs. Davis.

GUEST OF CITY.

This morning Roosevelt was the guest of a delegation of San Diego citizens and members of the navy and was shown over the exposition grounds, where he was the first man to cross in an automobile the month concrete bridge at the entrance. After a trip to Point Loma the party was driven to Coronado where he and Maj.-Gen. Arthur Murray, U.S.A., in charge of the Pacific Coast, were the guests of honor at a luncheon. In the party were Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, Maj.-Gen. Murray, Lieutenant-Commander Cleveland Davis, Lieutenant-Commander A. Street, Lieut. C. Metcalf, commander of the torpedo fleet; Rear-Admiral H. N. Manney, President of the Chamber of Commerce; W. Jefferson Davis, Col. Fred Jewell, F. J. Lea, Maj. C. F. O'Neill, C. H. Heilbron, Frank Sammons, W. H. Tompkins, A. E. Flowers and G. Aubrey Davidson, president of the exposition.

Mrs. Roosevelt declined the invitation to ride this morning, preferring to attend the Easter services at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. She and Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Cleveland Davis formed a luncheon party at the Coronado.

SKIRT THE BAY.

Following the luncheon the party made an automobile trip clear around the harbor, a distance of twenty-three miles from Coronado back to San Diego, and then visited the back country of San Diego.

Tomorrow Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt will be the guests of John D. Spreckels and his wife, Mrs. Spreckels, who will be luncheon on board and in the party will be Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Spreckels, Maj.-Gen. Murray, Lieut. C. Metcalf, Lieut. Commander Cleveland Davis and Mrs. Davis, Lieutenant-Commander Street, Rear-Admiral Uriel Sabree and Mrs. Sabree, G. Aubrey Davidson and Rufus Choate.

There will be a reception for Assistant Secretary of the Navy at the Grant Hotel tomorrow evening at 5:30 o'clock, and a banquet given by the Jefferson Club of San Diego. At a special dinner given at the ballroom of the Grant, Secretary Roosevelt will deliver the principal address of the evening.

SAN PEDRO, April 12.—Leo Gregory and Joe Francis, both of Wilmington, were brought to the San Pedro Police Station early this morning by Officer Draper charged with stealing a Hudson 33 automobile belonging to White, proprietor of a saloon in Wilmington.

The two were making their getaway toward Los Angeles shortly after midnight and at Ocean avenue on the Los Angeles boulevard, ran into a gum tree, throwing the occupants out and badly smashing the machine. Gregory received a broken arm and had his right cheek badly cut.

It is anticipated that White will appear before the District Attorney tomorrow and prefer charges of grand larceny against the two young men.

COTTON SEASON ENDS.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

HOLTVILLE, April 12.—The season has ended with the cotton gin at this place and 1200 bales are recorded for the season. This is an increase of 40 per cent over last year and the capacity of the gin is being increased 20 per cent with the expectation of handling at least 2000 bales next season. This section is considered as being more profitable for alfalfa and dairying than cotton, the major part of the being raised at the south end of the valley, but an increased acreage is being noted every season despite this.

Another Injured When Auto Knocks Her Down.

LONG BEACH, April 12.—Accepting a salary $1000 lower than he received in Atlanta to live and preach in Southern California, Rev. Hugh K. Walker, D.D., appeared before the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church today for the first time since accepting the call here.

At the morning service Dr. Walker, who was pastor of the Immanuel Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles for fifteen years, was introduced by Albert Johnson, one of the elders, whence cometh their help, to hear that he was risen and that from His sepulcher the sons were rolled away. There cometh their help, to hear that he was risen and that from His sepulcher the sons were rolled away.

The eminent churchman expressed his happiness to be in Southern California, and especially Long Beach. He announced his desire to make his incumbency of the pulpit here his life's work. He sees a great future for the world, silent, hushed and eager. His sermon was appropriate to Easter.

So great was the gathering to greet Dr. Walker this morning that scores of chairs were placed in the aisles and many stood. After presiding at the evening service, Dr. and Mrs. Walker returned to Long Beach to pack up their belongings, temporarily placed in the home of a relative, preparatory to moving to the city.

The family of Dr. Walker is so large—he has six children—that the manse was found too small and the congregation rented a spacious residence in Knoll Park for his use.

KILLED IN COLLISION.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

An innocent dare proved fatal to Mrs. Frank D. Planck, aged 43, of No. 1445 Florida street, today, when an automobile collided with a motorcycle on which she was riding, at Fourth and Orange streets.

Mrs. Planck was riding tandem with Frank Bennett, a neighbor, who had dared her to accompany him on a spin around the block. The motorcycle was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. T. G. Harriman, and Bennett and Mrs. Planck were thrown violently to the ground.

After being rushed to the Seaside Hospital, Mrs. Planck died within half an hour of hemorrhage in the brain. Her skull was crushed and an artery opened by the force of her fall.

She leaves three children here. Her husband is in California, Cal.

SHOPLIFTING CHARGES.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

Mrs. Lillian Thorsen, who lives on Cherry street, near Willow street, in the Signal Hill section, was arrested yesterday as a shoplifter. The police say that Mrs. Thorsen was apprehended in the Wendelborn store, with a shirt and a blouse, valued at $10.00, which she had stolen from the store. She is said, broke down, confessed the theft and said she did not know why she did it, as she has enough money on her person to pay for it. Her husband, who is employed by a well-known construction company, deposited $75 bail for her appearance.

The police will co-operate with the merchants in dealing summarily with shoplifters, who have bothered the sellers of merchandise considerably, and have heretofore been given a lecture and allowed to depart.

Venice.

BEACH SEASON OPENED
BY BIG EASTER CROWD.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

VENICE, April 12.—The beach season was formally opened today and fully 40,000 persons participated in the opening. Venice has always had two openings each season, the first is when the weather forces an opening and the second when the amusement people and others having business interests on the beach arrange for one. Today was the opening forced by the delightful weather.

From 10 o'clock this morning until four after sundown there was a constant line of visitors stretched from the entrance to the bath-house along the ocean front to Windward avenue awaiting their turn to get bathing suits. There were more bathers both in the plunge and in the ocean than at any other time this year.

The new bathing suits for this season were conspicuous. They differ but little from those of last year although there is probably not so much material in them.

All of the amusements received liberal patronage while in some of the late afternoon hours and evening. The Pacific Electric found it necessary to put on extra trains, both to and from the beach to care for the crowds.

In this city as well as in Ocean Park the bands rendered appropriate musical programmes and the bandstands at both places were handsomely decorated with natural flowers. All of the bay district churches were filled during the morning services, which were in keeping with the day. The chorus which was to have been given on the plaza by 80 children was postponed owing to the fact that there was a circus in town.

The broad walk from Venice to Ocean Park was an animated panorama of new spring suits and hats. The broad walk of Venice is to the bay district where the Boardwalk is to Atlantic City and is equally as well patronized.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

IMPERIAL, April 12.—The board of directors of the Imperial Irrigation District have passed a motion of intention to call an election to issue upon a $2,500,000 bond issue for the purchase of the Imperial Valley water system.

The resolution recites the various uses to which the money will be put if the bond issue carries, including the condemnation of the rights of private, purchasing of canal property and building new canals where necessary to afford an adequate water system for the future. The directors also authorized Director Brown to expend an extra $2000 at the expense of the Colorado below the levee where it is changing its channel. The sum of $2000 had already been paid for this purpose.

REPAIRING LEVEES.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

C. N. Perry, agent for the water companies in the valley, has begun the annual work of repairing the Colorado levee for the 20th year. He has at his disposal for immediate use $26,000. A large force of men has been sent to the levee to begin the work. The force of men has been sent to the levee to begin the work. The force of men has been sent to the levee to begin the work.

And sufficient equipment, including several dredgers, have been sent to aid in the work.

The work will be carried on all year on a larger scale than usual, owing to the fact that heavier floods are expected to come from the Colorado of the heavy snows during the winter in the mountains. No serious work from an overflow seems likely at this time.

MEXICAN AQUA.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

It was decided at the last meeting of the directors of Water Company No. 8 that hereafter all water in this company would be delivered directly from A. F. Andrade, a local postmaster for the Mexican Republic.

The superintendent of the company was instructed to cancel all orders for water placed with the California Development Company and to place them with the Mexican Republic. This becomes effective at once, according to the ruling of the board of directors.

FOR PROTECTION.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

The first steps toward the protection of the Colorado River from the Association were taken by the County Board of Supervisors, at their meeting, when a resolution was adopted to call for the selection of commissioners for the appointment of such a body.

The board of supervisors was asked to handle all matters of protection moment which effect irrigation operations throughout the valley. It was also requested that the board of representatives from every county and the various interests of the valley, will have absolutely no voice in all matters pertaining to the selection of such a body.

DOUBLE HANDFUL FOR MR. NORTON.

Byrnes Gives Nine Reasons for Ousting Him.

"Inefficient and Unfit to Be a Supervisor."

Caustic Review of Career of Earl Obstructionist.

BY IRA W. BYRNES,
Candidate for Supervisor.

In answer to the challenge published in the Tribune I shall endeavor to give my reasons why Richard H. Norton, Supervisor for the Second District of this county, should be recalled.

First: Upon the general allegation that he is inefficient and temperamentally unfit to hold that office.

Second: That he is an obstructionist—that he does not consider all things from a fair and impartial standpoint.

Third: That he was inefficient in not considering the wishes of those county districts which desired to improve their roads at their own expense and needed only the assistance of the county to give them a surplus which the county had of certain rock and soil, simply because the balance of the Board of Supervisors, all of whom are men elected by the reform element of the county, refused to vote with him to require certain persons holding certain offices to take a civil service examination. The balance of the board were assumed to give those office-holders the same privilege as to wit: that those holding offices for a period of six months prior to the date of the taking effect of the charter were to automatically hold their positions without civil service examinations.

Fourth: Further, that Mr. Norton was inconsistent, to the detriment of the people of this county, in his attitude on the salary ordinance. This ordinance was submitted to Mr. Norton prior to his present term of office, and he made certain changes and corrections, and OK'd the same, and made no objection to it until after it had gone into effect.

Fifth: That Mr. Norton is inefficient because of his unfairness to his associates upon the board. He has made accusations not supported by facts, for the general public to read, and of which the board members have no means of getting a proper denial, and basing his accusations upon innuendo and supposition. One of which accusations I refer to more particularly was relative to the approving of a warrant in connection with the question of employing a room in the Hotel Trenton for the juryman in the Barrett trial. Mr. Norton has charged that this room was rented by the District Attorney, when, as I have learned, the fact to be, the room was rented by the auditor, and more space was used than was needed, for the reason that it was desired that the said jury should be as secluded as possible, and additional space was necessary to enforce that condition.

Sixth: That Mr. Norton is inefficient for the reason that he is unfair to the balance of the county officers. I have learned from investigation that the department in chief which he is now attacking for extravagance and expense has paid its own expenses out of the income derived by virtue of its efforts. I speak of the District Attorney's office. When Mr. Norton comes to terms with the eastern cities, he fails to remember that most of them obtain their county criminal evidence through the local police department, while this county, with 1,000,000 inhabitants, depends entirely upon its own secret service force for such purposes. In addition to that, it maintains a motor police department, which, while it costs this county $12,000 to maintain for the last year, took in in fees for the year 1912 the sum of $24,000, and for the year of 1913 the sum of $25,000.

Seventh: I maintain that Mr. Norton is inefficient for the reason that the judgment he is using while acting as an officer of the county is similar to that of a director in a large private corporation, leads to internal strife and dissension among his employees, when he should strive to do all in his power to effect harmony and quiet, and get the most efficient service out of them. He should be able to place them in the proper channels, either by new legislation or by prosecution of any person or public officer spending public funds in a criminal manner. If there should be any useless extravagance, any future payments of money for that same cause can be easily regulated by an introduction of an ordinance.

Eighth: I further maintain that if our county business will be handicapped greatly to the detriment of the county taxpayers as long as Mr. Norton holds this office.

Ninth: Mr. Norton is inefficient for failing to prevent or attempting to prevent the employing by the county of a non-resident of this county and State to fill a position which could have been filled by many of our young college graduates, to wit: the office of civil service examiner.

In making my explanation in reference to the desire of Mr. Norton to force Mr. McAleer and Mr. Hill (the persons referred to in count three) to take a civil service examination for the positions which they held, I wish the public to understand that Mr. McAleer held the position before it was provided for by the county charter under the County Clerk, for a period of more than three years. In making this accusation I am not defending Mr. McAleer—that gentleman not being an acquaintance of mine—and I am taking this position only as a matter of fairness. Mr. Hill was the assistant county counsel, or rather, while a deputy in the District Attorney's office, had the same duties which he now has, and that he was the chief of that department upon the resignation of Byron Hanna on April 1, 1913. Both these men are as much entitled to the law and its benefits as are the heads of the rest of the county departments.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR SERVICE.

Whittier Commandery of Knights Templar was host yesterday to several hundred visiting Knights who came to attend a special Easter service at the Methodist Church in the afternoon. The Commanderies included Pasadena, Santa Ana, Pomona, Long Beach, Alhambra, and Covina. The special sermon for the occasion was preached by Rev. G. W. Coultas, pastor of the Methodist Church, who took as his theme, "The Cross and the Crown." William A. Hammel, State Grand Commander, and his staff, were present.

declare that He rose from the dead. They knew Him intimately before His crucifixion and burial, and they saw Him afterwards, and recognized Him as their Lord and Master. He was seen by above 500 of His followers at one time, after His resurrection, most of whom were living at the time Paul made the statement. The testimony of His own age, therefore, and of those best qualified to testify, is that He rose from the dead.

"The mountain-minded, great-hearted men have believed in immortality. The higher a man is in the scale of being, the stronger his faith is in immortality. Not only does the mind reason out the need of the after life, but the soul has an instinctive yearning and longing for immortality. The soul of man is too great for the earth house. There is another world, where he will have the opportunity to develop his unused talents. God has given a supply for every want of the body. He has given light for the eye, sound for the ear and food and water for the body. Dares anyone say that our Father would supply all the wants of the material body, and that when thousands of His children stretch out their hands, that He will push His helpless children back and back, into hopeless graves?"

REV. B. H. WILSON.

HIGHLAND PARK CHURCH.

Rev. Byron H. Wilson preached at the Highland Park Church on the subject: "The Joy of Jesus Christ."

"He has ever made the mistake of saying: 'God wills it.' Their error is only born of folly, ignorance or misconception," he said. "The real will of God is devotion to duty, out of which comes perfect peace, the joy, sublime happiness. God takes no delight in sorrow or suffering of themselves, but only in the joy of His creatures. Joy is not incompatible with grief when the goal is worthy and victory certain. The mind is often made to make joy dependent upon physical conditions. 'The real need of humanity is to have joy concurrent with and commensurate to our needs. It is then that burden bearing for a great cause becomes a real joy.'

"We read that Jesus Christ, for the joy that was set before Him, endured Christ's exulted in his adequate strength and manifest destiny. He knew that he had strength in the will of the Father and that at last, all would be well.

"He also is not in abundant life, but also in imperishable life. He had his crucifixion, but he also had his resurrection. He had his garden of Gethsemane, but he also had his garden of resurrection. The joy of his Easter Day is the joy of Jesus Christ in our hearts. As there were red with weeping over fresh-made graves, but the angel of mercy ye the living among the dead? Some hearts are hard and bitter, Christ has power to roll the stone away. Some souls are groping through darkness and unbelief—Hear Him say: 'I am the light of the world.' Some hearts are deeply troubled, and He points to the mansions. As there were times on the road to the cross when our Christ caught beautiful glimpses of the completed work, so to every heroic spirit there comes a glimpse of victory and triumph. These moments are replete with joy—the joy of Jesus."

DR. LOCKE.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH.

Dr. Charles Edward Locke preached at the First Methodist Episcopal Church last evening on the subject: "Is Man Immortal?" His text was: "Because I live ye shall live also."

Dr. Locke said in part: "Life is the theme of the Easter, not death; Jesus is the Life of the world. Man's immortality is the corollary of Christ's resurrection. The belief in a home in heaven is founded upon the doctrine of immortality. Confidence in the future life has steadily increased with the progress of civilization until it is now well-nigh universal. So far there has been no mathematical demonstration of a future life, but the argument from probability in other fields of investigation is as convincing as the results of exact calculation. 'If, therefore, we shall be compelled on the threshold of the argument to confess that there has not been a scientific demonstration of a future life, we are reassured in our faith in immortality because physical science has been powerless to prove anything against it. The opponents of a future life have gained nothing by any negative arguments. 'There is a strong probability of a future life because in the natural world annihilation is a myth. There are transformations of energy, but the physical law of the conservation of force prevents destruction. Experimental psychologists are believing today that there is a mind which concludes that the mind dies when the body dies. It is the mind that is the body, and mind is spirit and cannot die.' 'Another life will be required to correct the irregularities of the rewards and punishments of this life. Creation is a colossal failure if there is no immortality. Better to have been a brute on the hillside than a man if there is no life after this! If the Bible doctrine is a myth, then life is a burlesque, integrity a burden, and conscience a curse! Perseverance all the time, then, no matter how long the human family would be hurried to extinction by suicide! In the future world virtue will be rewarded, and those who throughout their lives have suffered for the right will be crowned by the Glory of the Universe.

MATUTINAL DEVOTIONS AT INSPIRATION POINT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, April 13.—Hundreds of Pasadenaans, as well as persons from all parts of the San Gabriel Valley, yesterday attended the sunrise Easter services on the brow of Monk's Hill in Altadena. It was the first time that open-air matutinal Easter exercises have been held in Pasadena and many who annually have gone to Riverside to attend those on Mt. Rubidoux this year went to Monk's Hill.

The services yesterday were held under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, which organization announced last night that it will be an annual institution hereafter, and the audience assembled at 5 o'clock, although it was nearly 5:30 o'clock before the sun came over the mountains. It was an ideal morning and the golden rays of sunshine shot across the valley, illuminating the city of Pasadena below, while those assembled sang Easter hymns to the accompaniment

Judge of all the earth who can make no blunders.

"We have entered upon that era in the history of scientific research when there are few antagonisms between science and religion, and when the seekers for light are becoming predisposed to discern and re-enforce mutually exclusive truths. It seems to me that science was never so reverent and religion never so intellectual as in the studies of these events of yesterday."

"All science tells us today about the 'arrest of the human body,' and because the laws of development have produced an almost perfect body and thus closed one chapter of advancement, the evolutionist looks with an enthusiastic anticipation that reminds us of the exuberant expectation of the exponent of gospel truth, to the further developments and perfection which may be logically expected in man's spiritual nature."

"Again, there is a strong probability of a future life because of a universal law in nature, the law of immortality. To live again is the hunger of the soul. As the babe instinctively takes nourishment at the mother's breast, from whom without instruction have reached out for a future life."

DR. CARTER.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

"How does the death of Christ save us?" and "Why does the resurrection of Jesus assure ours?" were two vital questions discussed by Dr. C. M. Carter at the First Baptist Church Sunday morning. He said in part: "Salvation is far more than the escape of the soul from hell. It is true that through faith in Christ the soul is saved from eternal separation from God, but the soul is saved for its highest possibilities. Faith in Christ saves from eternal separation from God, and from the love of sin. It saves the soul into sonship, priesthood and help."

"How does faith in the blood of Christ save my soul? First of all, it is God's plan. Surely it is the only plan that God has devised to save man. The soul is saved for its highest possibilities. Faith in Christ saves from eternal separation from God, and from the love of sin. It saves the soul into sonship, priesthood and help."

"There are many evidences for belief in the resurrection of Jesus, but the one overwhelming practical evidence is the fact that it works. Faith in the death and resurrection of Jesus transforms the souls of men. It does so on millions, hundreds of millions of men. The great nature of the world are those whose souls have been transformed by the resurrection of Jesus. This faith in Jesus changes the affections in men until what they once hated now they love, and what they once despised now they love. Sin becomes extremely hateful."

"The great nations are Christian nations. The cry for universal peace comes from the nations that love. Missionaries who are willing to give their lives for others are Christians. Faith in Jesus produces love, selfless service and thoughtfulness for others. All the real graces of character are Christian graces. The greatest transforming power in the world is the love of Jesus, in His death and resurrection."

COUNTER GIRL GETS ACROSS.

She's gorgeously Plumed and Full of Fun.

Saturday's Opening Stamps
Show Winner.

Shean Heads Dashing Cast and Chorus.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

Mozart produced "The Magic Flute" for the first time in Vienna in 1791 and the Gaiety Theatre Company produced "The Girl Behind the Counter" at the Morocco Theater Saturday night, April 12, 1914. The two productions are different, but they both contain magic, and, judging by the gleam of arms, heave of bosoms and twinkle of ankles in the latter, it is the same magic.

"The Girl Behind the Counter" would be good for the tired business man. She suspects as much and so does he. They met at the Morocco and it was a joyous reunion.

She was rather better dressed than her acquaintance might have warranted, but what of that? Are we not forever being told that there is nothing money will not do? The girl behind the counter happens to be more stunningly gowned than most women in front of it. In fact, a dozen girls in the show are gorgeously plumed, like a whole flock of birds of Paradise, with one wing dipped in the sunset glow and the other in rain-bow tints. The costuming of the piece is away beyond the price. It would be better than could be expected of that other Broadway at $2 a seat.

Myrtle Dingwall imparts a rich flavor to the nonsense she goes through. In the comedy she is the daughter of Henry Schiff, a soldier of misfortune, who is unlucky enough to be rich and married at the same time and whose wife has the advantage of two dead husbands with all of the attendant experience. She breaks into society and has Henry walking the plank line at the same time.

It is not pleasant to be the husband of such a woman, but Al Shean, as Henry, does it, except for one scene where he steps on her train and she walks off the stage hazardously drenched.

Maude Beatty is cast for the lady of the house, but she is a bit of a dud. The part so amiably that she does to Henry. Besides, she is stunningly dressed while she does it, except for one scene where he steps on her train and she walks off the stage hazardously drenched.

Arthur Clough, the romantic tenor, has the part of the young self-made millionaire in love with the pretty daughter of Schiff and the two have a duet called "The Flower Girl" at the close of Part I, which is an enticing thing done in the style of the mating birds in her song. She has a serious number, "Le Chanson Provencale," which is enchanting.

Daphne Pollard Sullivan, assistant cashier in the universal store, does not appear to be making the meditations of Thais at any stage in the game. Massenet is the least of her troubles. She is a wonderfully versatile little creature, with a tolerable voice, good looks and no lack of comedy in her system. She is a dynamic little mirth provoker, admirably suited to the gaieties of the company and earning a laugh and an encore for every appearance. In her "All Aboard for Dixie," herself and the chorus were such cloth, but not so good as the other.

The final of Part I finds Orval Humphries, as Lord Gusman, with Miss Tasker on his knees and every man in the house ready to challenge him for a duel to the death and willing to offer their services to the company for nothing. A stern management would send no cards between acts. It makes the girls know what to expect. The fellows with cards are to be condoned and not censured.

Clough has a fine solo with good results. The "Cherry in the Glass" and received several encores on it. It must be very pleasant to have the fault of the stage and suddenly be entirely surrounded by a dozen dark beauties with their hearts in their mouths and their eyes flashing unspeakable things.

In Part II the colored wigs arrive in resplendent numbers, topping dazzling costumes.

Between the acts there was a parade of the girls in the aisles to give the ladies a chance to inspect their brilliant attire at closer range. The inspection was purely feminine, although one man, when asked what he knew about Daphne Pollard's diaphanous bloomers, declared that he knew a lot. The scenery was fine.

"The Girl Behind the Counter" gets across and the Saturday night opening seems to be a winner.

George Boas.

A paroled criminal from Washington, who is badly wanted on a charge of having assaulted many women.

His victims are women who have been left behind them a reminder that the day was not just as other days—flowers whose perfume was not quite stifled by the jail odor, and whose brightness made a new place of the somber confines.

SOUTH PASADENA SERVICES.

Special Easter Programmes of Music and Sermons in Churches Attended by Many Hundreds.

Special Easter services were held at all the churches of South Pasadena yesterday, closing the Lenten season of prayer. The decorations were more beautiful than usual. A vested choir of twenty-five voices furnished a special musical programme at St. James Episcopal Church at the morning service, under the direction of Edwin E. Tarbox, organist and choir master. A vesper song service was also given for the children at 4 o'clock.

At the Methodist Church, the choir rendered two Easter cantatas at 4 o'clock. In the morning the pastor, Rev. George Carol King, delivered the Easter sermon, at which time special music was furnished.

At the Calvary Presbyterian Church, the pastor, Rev. Charles M. Fisher, preached an Easter sermon at the morning service. The music was furnished by the choir, an anthem "As It Began to Dawn" (Miller) and an offertory anthem, "He Is Not Here, But Is Risen" (Hawley).

At the Christian Church in the evening, a splendid programme had been arranged, consisting of recitations, songs by different classes, anthems by the choir, solos and duets, male and female quartettes and stereoscopic views of the life of Christ by Hoffman.

Easter was observed at all of the services at the Memorial Baptist Church yesterday. At 9:30 o'clock the Sunday-school rendered a cantata, and the pastor, Rev. C. W. Jackson, gave a brief talk to the children. In the evening the choir furnished a specially prepared programme in which Miss Mabelle Clark of Los Angeles was the soloist, while the sermon subject was "Resurrection Power."

EASTER MARKS CONTRAST.

Lillian Palmer Has Delights of Home; Kilfoil Hears Services in the County Jail.

Easter dawned yesterday on a sharp contrast in the lives of the principals in the Kilfoil prison mystery.

Christina, one of the two Christian days of cheer, marked the beginning of trouble, when little Lillian Palmer discovered she was to be a mother. Yesterday found her safely restored to her home and exonerated of murder accusations in the opinion of prosecutors, while Phil Kilfoil, the man who accused her, and who she says is the father of her child, was behind jail bars.

At her home, No. 203 East Thirty-seventh street, Lillian yesterday had the little delights that gladden children on Easter Sunday. There were gaudily-colored eggs, significant of fabled rabbits, and flowers.

WOMEN TO HUNT FELON-FUGITIVE.

Paroled Criminal Accused of Six Brutal Assaults.

Robs Victims, Then Forces
Loathsome Caresses.

Police Seek Girls' Help to Run Him to Earth.

Natural Enemy.

To capture George Boas, alias Fisher, alias Holt, the offensive criminal who poses as a secret service officer and selects unprotected and comely women as his victims, the police will insist that his victims accompany plainclothesmen in a search for the man, paying them if necessary to recompense them for time lost from their work.

His victims are women who have been left behind them a reminder that the day was not just as other days—flowers whose perfume was not quite stifled by the jail odor, and whose brightness made a new place of the somber confines.

With paralyzing bravado, the man makes a practice of confronting women in the daytime, when they are alone and demanding from them money and jewelry. Before he leaves he invariably caresses them with loathsome persistence, staying often times more than two hours in the victim's company.

METHOD SYSTEMATIC.

With a reward of $50 offered for his capture by the State penitentiary of Washington at Walla Walla, from which he was paroled, Boas has gone about the city for several weeks, hunting for his victims. In each instance he has referred to himself as secret service man No. 6.

His method of work is to carefully arrange for his fall by identifying the residents of the house and the first names of the persons he is to mention.

Always the woman involved is attracted. Boas asks the woman if she knows that her husband or some friend is in trouble. Then he offers to arrange affairs so the involved party will be released if he is given a certain amount of money as a bribe. In this way he has secured several hundred dollars.

After he has gained all the money the woman has and her jewelry, he insists on resting, caressing his victim, and offering his insulting attentions hour after hour. In each instance, the woman is left in a state of confusion and distress.

Following the arrest of Boas, the full color and wearing of the interior of the dress, a veritable fairland of flowers, communion was held.

CROSSES FROM PALM.

Novel Scheme of Easter Service Employed at the Bethel Church Yesterday.

At the Bethel Church, Dr. J. H. A. Widney utilized a novel scheme of decoration for Easter services. The Sunday school children, dressed in white, carried crosses made of palm fronds, which were placed in the front pillars of the church, in green and white and brown and green.

In the church the palm fronds were lined with pink and white and green.

Following the service, the full color and wearing of the interior of the dress, a veritable fairland of flowers, communion was held.

His last attack was made on a French woman who was doing work in the dental office of Dr. J. H. Gill in the Los Angeles Hotel.

He told her that Gill was a friend of having used the malle to her and was under arrest. Then he attempted to take several rings of hers. He remained in the room more than two hours, endeavoring to persuade her to let him build thought the doctor's building a tooth.

The robber was routed in the Gill, who entered the room to rescue the girl.
